Alice Rothchild and Bill Slaughter visited the Gaza Strip in March 2015 with a medical delegation, as part of broader Israel/Palestine visits. They will share images and impressions of the destruction and extraordinary resilience that they encountered and the ongoing siege conditions. What is life like after an invasion that killed 2,200 people (582 of them children, according to UN figures) and destroyed nearly 100,000 homes? Explore how people currently confined in the Gaza Strip - from farmers to psychiatrists - rebuild their lives amidst the devastation and political challenges.
